The kitchen was shaped into the open living plan so that breathtaking panoramic views can be enjoyed from every vantage point of this new mountain-top post-and-beam home. Cabinetry with a prominent molding detail balances the large, exposed beams and timbers. Maple wood was finished in a warm, burnished stain then complemented by select pieces in "licorice" paint that was rubbed through to reveal some of the natural maple wood hiding beneath. Juparana Persia granite countertops further reflect the natural beauty that surrounds this home. ▼

The U-shaped island acts as the kitchen "stage" to entertain family and friends. The working side features refrigerator drawers in the food prep zone while generous seating and valuable storage cabinets complete the outside of the island. ▼
